1. The area shown as No. 1 on the sketch is a district where there are no civilians and only troops are billeted. All the troops observed had black service stripes, and the majority wore the crossed gun-barrel insignia on their shoulder boards, indicating that they belonged to the artillery. This area is approximately 3.3 km south of Palanga.
2. The former Himmersatt Kurhaus (see sketch) is a regional headquarters, and only artillery officers have been observed entering and leaving.
3. In the area marked No. 2 on the sketch, all the civilian population has been evacuated, and the farmhouses are now billets for troops wearing black service stripes. According to local inhabitants living near this area, it is an artillery training ground.
